Frustration, Anxiety and Tension Workshop

F.A.T. stands for Frustration, Anxiety, and Tension — and that's exactly what the participant's experience. This workshop and video provide teachers, parents, caregivers, and siblings with the opportunity actually to experience the emotions and stresses that children with learning disabilities face daily. By using simulations and contrived activities as models (for example, telling a story without using any words that contain the letter N), the participants temporarily experience the frustration, anxiety, and tension that is the lifestyle of students with special needs.

The Importance of Evaluations
